QUALIFICATION FOR ADMISSION TO PRACTICE LAW IN CALIFORNIA THROUGH CORRESPONDENCE OR DISTANCE-LEARNING LAW STUDY

The requirements for admission to practice law in California are contained in the Rules Regulating Admission to Practice Law in California (Rules). The following is a summary of the requirements for students qualifying for admission to practice law in California through correspondence or distance-learning law study. For the specific requirements, refer to the Rules.

To be admitted to practice law in California, an applicant must comply with the requirements outlined in the Rules, which include: 1) obtaining the required pre-legal education before beginning the study of law; 2) completing the requisite legal education; 3) registration as a law student; 4) passing the First-Year Law Students' Examination, unless exempt from taking the examination; 5) receiving a positive moral character determination; 6) passing the Multistate Professional Responsibility Examination; and, 7) passing the California Bar Examination. Additionally, an applicant must not be certified by the State Department of Social Services as being in non-compliance with a court ordered child or family support obligation. There is no requirement of citizenship or residency.

Applicants may qualify to take the California Bar Examination by studying law for four years through a correspondence or distance-learning law school that is registered with the Committee of Bar Examiners. A minimum of 864 hours of preparation and study per year is required. Refer to Rule VII, Section 4 of the Rules for the specific requirements pertaining to such study.

Refer to Unaccredited Law School Rules for the requirements required for registration as a correspondence or distance-learning law school. Credit will not be allowed for study that does not comply with the requirements of the Rules.

In accordance with Rule V, Section 1 of the Rules, all applicants seeking admission to practice law must register with the Committee prior to filing any applications, petitions, requests for waivers from these Rules or before any services can be provided. Registration is only available online at www.calbar.ca.gov/admissions.

Students studying law through correspondence or distance-learning law study are subject to the First-Year Law Students' Examination. Students may be granted a maximum of two years of law study credit if they take and pass the First-Year Law Students' Examination within three consecutive attempts after first becoming eligible to take it, which is after completion of the their first year of law study credit. Students passing the examination after three attempts will receive only one year of law study. Refer to Rule VIII of the Rules for more information concerning the required examinations.

Lists of correspondence and distance-learning law schools currently registered with the Committee of Bar Examiners is available on the State Bar's Website at www.calbar.ca.gov/admissions.
